In today's media landscape, there can be a lot of noise and spin that can confuse already complex matters. This is especially true in real estate. When there is an endless amount of takes amongst what you read, hear, and watch, how do you separate the meat from the fluff to really understand what's going on in our industry?

To speak on the confluence of journalism and media influence, Real Estate News president Mitch Robinson will be taking the stage at Thrive '25. Hear from one of the leading industry publications about what trusted news looks like and how it affects how we do business.
